Chapter 1 by Fanwizard

As the last of the pale pink petals dropped to the ground
The last remainders of summer fading away
A cold breeze blew past
Rustling through the branches of an oak tree
When it slipped past
Along with it came fire red and pale orange leaves
Their colors were starting to darken to brown
The beauty slipping away
The sounds of geese filled the air
As they called their farewell to the north
Their loud noisy honks the only sound
The leaf-strewn ground spread beyond the eye could see
As a girl hurried through the brisk and breezy air
Stepping on the rust colored leaves
Everything seemed to be wilting
It was a sad time of the year

When people must part
And the plants must die
But it was hopeful too
